14th ASEAN MEDICAL DEAN'S SUMMIT 2024

“Revolutionizing Medical Education for the Next Generation”

13-14 June 2024
University of the Philippines Manila | College of Medicine

THE HISTORY OF THE ASEAN MEDICAL SCHOOLS NETWORK (AMSN)

The ASEAN Medical Schools Network (AMSN) was established in 2012 to promote collaboration among the leading medical schools in the ASEAN region to achieve excellence in medical education and healthcare, share human resources, assist one another in capacity building in medical education and research, and to work as one community as part of the ASEAN Economic Community.

In a significant milestone for ASEAN, the 1st ASEAN Medical Deans' Summit (AMDS) marked the inaugural gathering of medical education leaders, including Deans and Rectors, from 10 nations: Thailand, Laos, Myanmar, Vietnam, Cambodia, Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines, Singapore, and Brunei. The convergence took place at Siriraj, serving as a platform for sharing visions and collaborative ideas for the collective benefit of the 600 million people within the ASEAN community.

Subsequent Summits occurred in Malaysia in 2013, Singapore in 2014, the Philippines in 2015, Indonesia in 2016, Myanmar in 2017, Vietnam in 2018, and Brunei Darussalam in 2019. In 2020, the 9th meeting was hosted virtually by Siriraj Hospital, Mahidol University, adapting to the global travel restrictions imposed due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Another virtual summit was hosted by Cambodia and Singapore in 2021. Face to face AMDS resumed in Laos in 2022 and then in Malaysia in 2023.

This year, the University of the Philippines Manila College of Medicine is, once again the host of the summit, showcasing the innovative curriculum, educational laboratories and extensive clinical and community exposure which characterize the quality medical education it provides.

MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT

As President of the ASEAN Medical Schools Network let me invite you to the 14th ASEAN Medical Deans' Summit to be held in Manila from June 12-14, 2024. Built on a vision of promoting collaboration among leading medical schools for progress in medical education to address the health needs of an ever-changing world this becomes even more significant given the lessons and unprecedented changes in the post-COVID-19 pandemic. Presented with new challenges your participation in this summit with the theme "Revolutionizing Medical Education for the Next Generation" will help significantly in shaping a brighter future for medical education and transforming the way we deliver healthcare in the region. We are all aware of the cultural context by which we are to deliver medical education to alleviate suffering and promote health and well-being among our people.

Promotion of Health Equity and harnessing emerging technologies while leveraging traditional core values that produce compassionate physicians will certainly inform the multifaceted conversations on how we might make medical education transform human lives.

We will be able to share our best practices, exchange ideas, and learn from each other as we collaborate more in teaching, research, and training to co-create a future where our institutions grow ever closer to each other to achieve our common aspirations.

Founded in 2012 our charter members have now invited new members into the network. We expect that more will join as we show how our community can forge stronger partnerships and collaborations. I do not doubt that with the enthusiasm that we carry in our hearts and dedication to the tasks of continuing to innovate, inspire, and develop new modes of educating not only practice-ready medical professionals but also physician scientists and future medical educators, we will prevail over the myriad challenges we will face to reach our lofty goals.

On behalf of the Board, let me thank the organizing committee for the dedicated work they have put in to ensure the successful staging of the 14th ASEAN Medical Deans' Summit.

Mabuhay!!

Charlotte M. Chiong, MD PhD
